

To Build a Peaceful World...

Literature from Resources for Peace

An introduction to the idea of nonviolence. Written in clear, simple English, it features profiles of world leaders who succeeded using nonviolent means; descriptions of alternatives to violence; and a list of groups for further information. Ideal for placement in literature racks, for mailings, or for distribution to young people who are just beginning to learn about nonviolence.

40¢; 10/$3.50; 100/$30.00; 500 or more copies, 100/$25.00

An unusual and thought-provoking introduction to the moral questions raised by war. This leaflet outlines three common approaches—defending the country, the Just War Theory, and pacifism—and invites the reader to make his or her own choice. A reading list and information on helpful organizations make this a good starter kit for people thinking through these issues.

An essential introduction to a subject that affects every 18-year-old man in the United States. In a clear, impartial style, it explains the law on registration, the consequences of non-registration, and options for people who object to war. If you are a man approaching 18 or know someone who is, you need this leaflet.
